Scope

This policy applies to anyone working for us. This includes employees, workers, contractors, volunteers, interns, and apprentices.

Circumstances in which staff may be stopped and searched

You may be stopped and searched where we have reasonable grounds to suspect that that you have committed an illegal act. You may also from time to time be stopped and searched at random. This does not mean that you are under any suspicion of wrongdoing.

Individuals permitted to conduct a search

Only department heads and the Chief Executive Officer are permitted to search staff.

Our commitment to you

We will ensure that department heads and those members of the senior leadership team permitted to search staff receive training on how to implement this policy fairly. In line with our equality, diversity, and inclusion (EDI) policy and anti-harassment and anti-bullying policy, we will also take steps to ensure that this policy is not used in a discriminatory manner and that no individual is unfairly targeted.

Request for your consent

Before you are searched, you will be asked to consent to the search by completing a stop and search consent form. If you refuse to undergo a search, you will be expected to give details of the reasons for your refusal.

Manner in which a search may be conducted

You may be asked to consent to a search of your personal items, including but not limited to your bag(s), your vehicle, your desk and any cabinets or lockers. A search of your personal items will be carried out in your presence by a department head or Chief Executive Officer and in the presence of another department head.

Refusal to consent to a search

If you unreasonably refuse to undergo a search, this will be dealt with under our disciplinary procedure and may result in disciplinary action, up to and including summary dismissal.

If a search reveals evidence that you have committed an illegal act, this will be dealt with under our disciplinary procedure and may result in disciplinary action, up to and including summary dismissal. We will also report the matter to the police.
